Summary: CICASP Seminar 38 Mini-Debate

In a similar format to last week's seminar, we carried out a mini-debate on a controversial topic, with the class split into two teams, each assigned opposing sides of the argument. The topic discussed was whether or not there is such a thing as human 'races'. Both sides presented their strongest arguments, using the reading material provided. Each team then defended their viewpoints in the face of counter-argument from the opposing team, with all members contributing.
