

SUMMARY OF PREVIOUS SEMINAR

CICASP Seminar in Science Communication #145

Neglected Science Stories of 2020

Wednesday, December 16, 2020

The year 2020—one of the most unusual and, for many across the globe, difficult years in our lifetime—came to its end. In this seminar, we took a look back at some of the good things that happened in 2020 and spoke about important non-COVID-related scientific advances that had not received the attention they had deserved. Attendees shared stories about the return of Hayabusa2 spacecraft, forest conservation trends in Asia, and much more, ending on an optimistic note for the coming year.

OUTLINE OF UPCOMING SEMINAR

CICASP Seminar in Science Communication #146

MSc thesis presentation practice

5PM–, Wednesday, January 13, 2021

To be held on Zoom (see email announcements for access details)

Let's begin the new year with presentation practices. The upcoming CICASP seminar will be dedicated to help masters students practice their thesis presentations. In this seminar, WRC and PRI students can give feedback to their colleagues to help improve their presentations, and learn together. James Brooks will be the first to present next week.

Join us in this seminar to listen to MSc students practice!

2021年最初のセミナーでは、英語での修士論文発表の練習を行います。分野外の人にも分かり易く研究を発表する方法について学ぶ良い機会ですので、お誘いあわせの上、是非ご参加ください。
