I joined PSJ 2016 in Kagoshima, and I had an oral presentation about the collaborated work, a circular relationship in chimpanzees, done with Prof. Tomonaga, Prof. Matsuzawa, and Prof. Su of Peking University. This was the first time I showed my result after our participants made great progress in a new condition. I was glad that people were interested and we had some discussion after the presentation, which helped me in preparing for the next step. I also tried to catch other presentations. There were not many in English, but I managed to get the general ideas. This was a pretty good opportunity to know about others’ studies. I joined the social gathering in the second evening. It was very nice to talk to different people and share study progress. We went back to around the central station together in the little cute tram, and shared the charming night view of Kagoshima.   (Kagoshima Central Station)
