

Research Activity Report
Supported by “Leading Graduate Program in Primatology and Wildlife Science”

2017. 06, 20
Affiliation/Position	Primate Research Institute/D1
Name	Raquel Costa

1. Country/location of visit
Faculty of Letters, Kyoto University
2. Research project
Kokoro Meeting: Young Psychology Researchers Meeting
3. Date (departing from/returning to Japan)
2017. 06. 18
4. Main host researcher and affiliation
Faculty of Letters, Kyoto University
5. Progress and results of your research/activity
The Kokoro meeting for Young Psychology Researchers was held in the Faculty of Letters, Kyoto University. This meeting aimed to bring together young researchers and students, from different centers and departments related to Psychology, within Kyoto University. This was a very good opportunity to young students to present themselves to the academic society and look for scientific collaborations. Each poster presenter had the chance to present itself and present very briefly his or her research work. Following that, students interacted and got feedback from others. The topics covered by some of the posters presented by the students included a great variety of themes such as empathy modulation, emotion, memory processes, programming of time and space information, personality, intercultural ability and visual processing. In this meeting, I learnt about the different research topics of Psychology and the ongoing research conducted by young researchers. In my opinion, these kinds of activities are important to establish communication bridges between sub-fields of Psychology. Fig. 1. Primate Research Institute students presenting their ongoing research.

Research Activity Report
Supported by “Leading Graduate Program in Primatology and Wildlife Science”

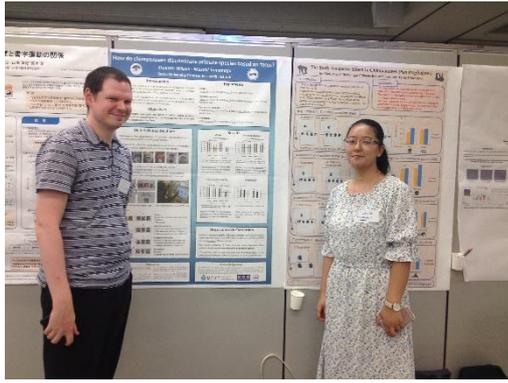

Fig. 2. Meeting announcement outside the University.

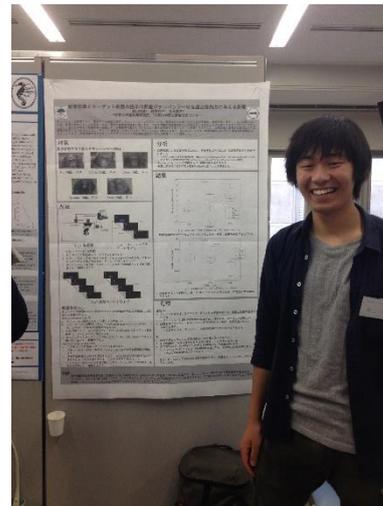

Fig. 3. Primate Research Institute student presenting his ongoing research.

6. Others

I wish to express my gratitude to organizing committee. I wish to thank my supervisor, Prof. Hayashi for her guiding, patience and support. I'm very thankful to PWS for supporting my trip and stay in Kyoto.